ABOUT ME

I am a full-stack developer driven by functionally optimal and visually appealing results. I study software application development at the UNICEN university (Lobería branch), I have a great affinity for computers and IT and I am also self taught in music performance and composition. I am currently looking for a work position in which I can expand my knowledge and experience in the web development area, whilst also learning general purpose technologies. I have particular ease with PHP, Laravel and MySQL, but I also like working with MongoDB and I get along well with native frontend technologies (HTML/CSS/JS Vanilla).
